Greetings, employing member of the Saint Joseph's Business Guild. It's a pleasure to reach out to you.

My name is William Gomes: I am a recent graduate in music composition at the University of Saint Thomas, and thereafter a music teacher from Saint Ambrose of Woodbury Catholic School. I was introduced to the Catholic Business Guild through Luke Gion, the music director at Saint John Newman Catholic Church in Eagan. Luke and I are composing buddies, and in need of a good job for Catholics, he introduced me to the guild.

My goal is to initiate a career which diversifies and strengthens skills outside of music. I have many skills which are not music related, because my previous employment has required my leadership and obligation, management, problem solving skills, ingenuity, and intense public speaking in the work that I have done in Catholic schools, the Church, and as an independent musician.

I am a quick learner with computers, diligent and thorough, and mission and task oriented in the work that I do. I am capable and willing to be creatively flexible when I need to be. My skills include inventory management, manual and janitorial labor, word processing, data management, and clear communication amongst teammates. Please take a look at my resume for more detail. My previous employers have said that I commit to tasks enthusiastically, am well-organized, and am thoroughly intentional about my job. You will also find me to be a hard worker and a thoughtful, earnest man who keeps his word.

Please consider me for any positions you have open; I have been a real jack-of-all-trades in my previous work experience (see my resume for more). I look forward to the potential of working at your business. Thank you for considering me!

God bless!

William Gomes
